COUNTRY PRESENCE

Mazars has a solid network of professionals across Asia, with over 2,000 in China and 800 in India, while other countries in the region have staff numbers that fall within the range of 80 to 350 professionals, all of whom work in an integrated way across borders. Country management at Mazars is important, but it is not the only way that Mazars manages its businesses and clients.

SERVICE LINE MANAGEMENT

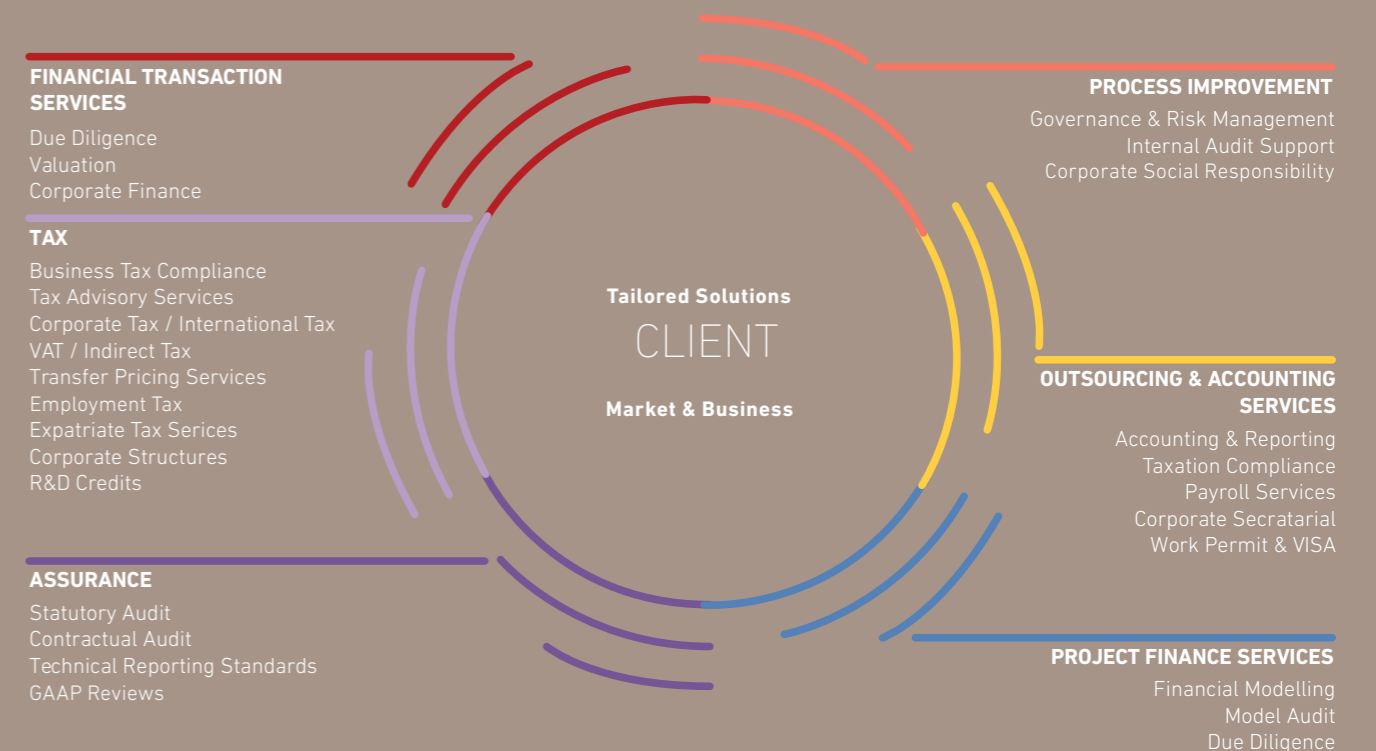

The services lines, which are managed on a regional basis, are becoming increasingly more important. This applies to the core disciplines such as audit and assurance, tax advisory and compliance, and each of the three main outsourcing streams: Accounting, Payroll, and Corporate Secretarial Services. Other service lines also operate in a more concentrated way. Due diligence teams, for example, operate in all countries, but the respective country teams also rely on centres of expertise that currently operate in Singapore and Shanghai. Another example is in respect of infrastructure financial modelling work, which relies on a team of experts in Sydney and Delhi. There are also specialised internal audit teams in Hong Kong and Singapore which often coordinate projects across the region.

SECTOR TEAMS

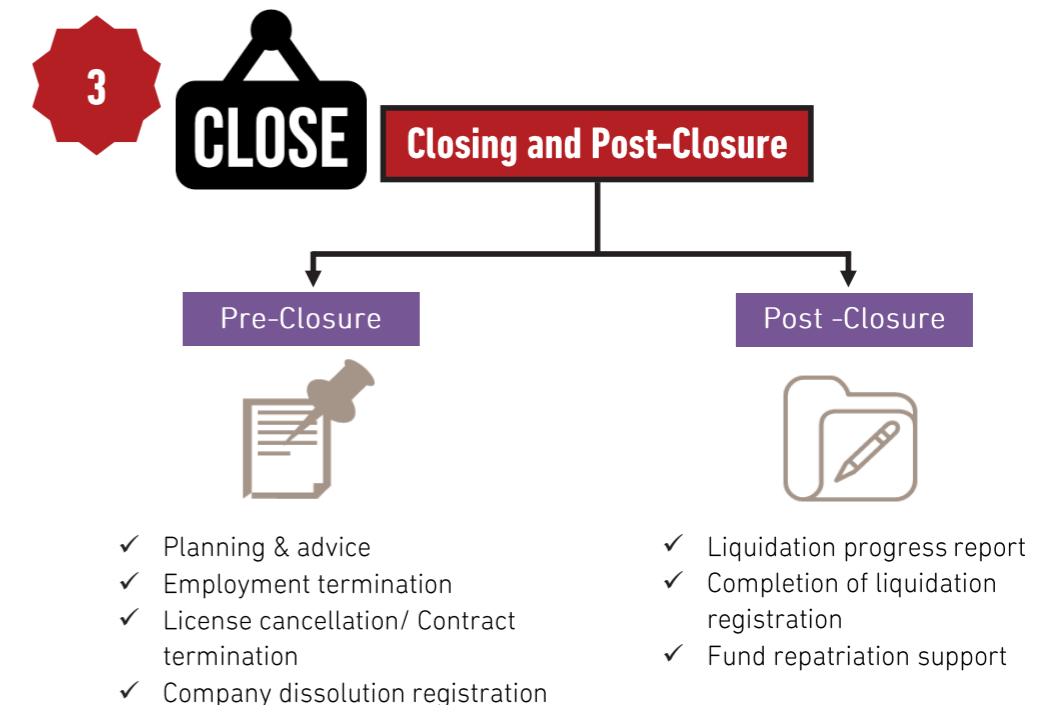

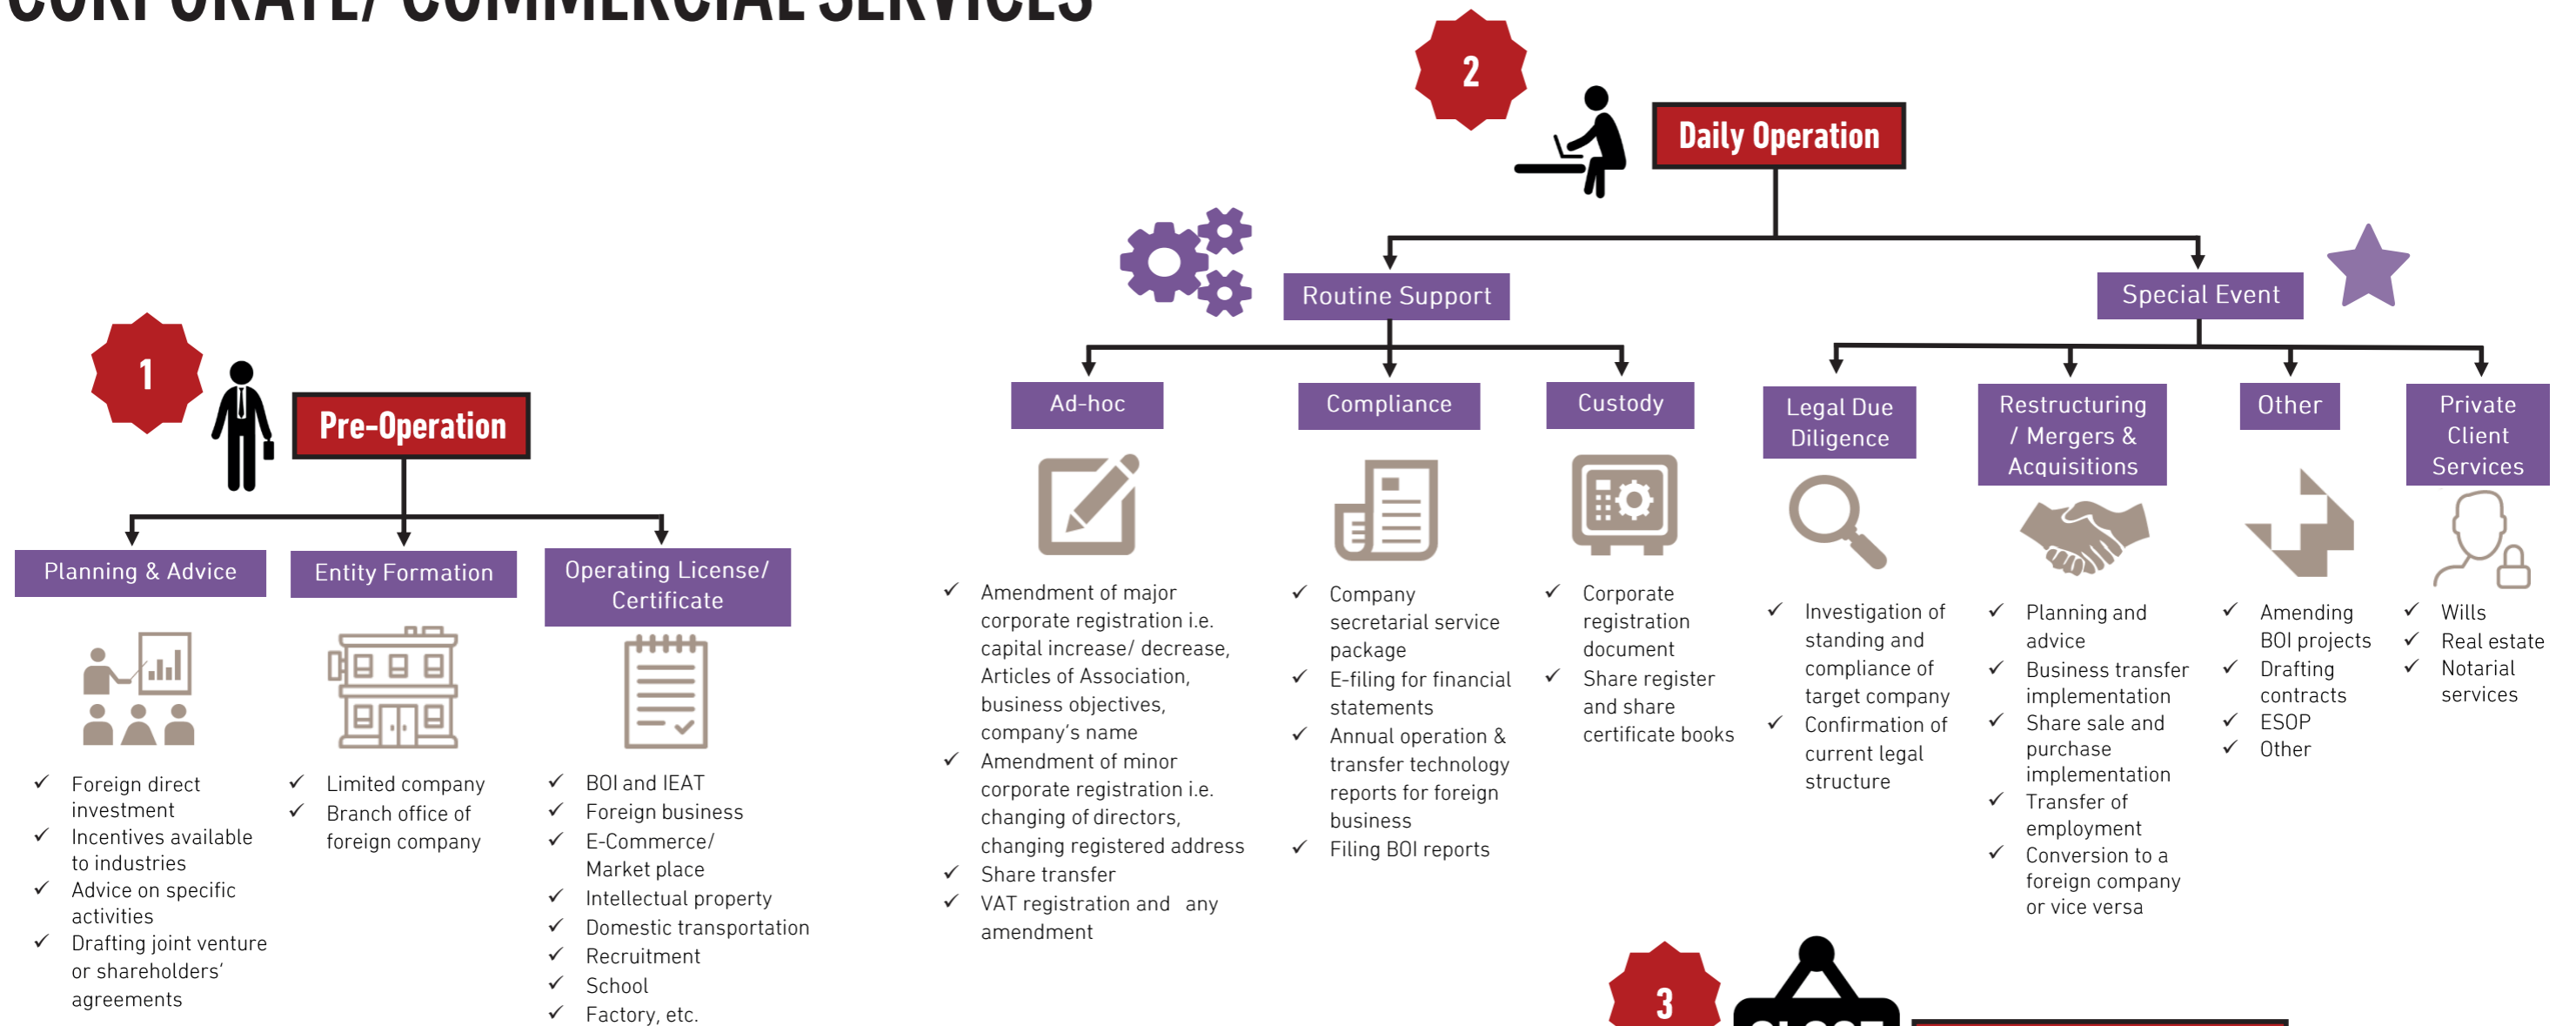

Mazars is also, in respect to certain sectors, building in-country cross-service lines, as well as linking up sector service teams across borders. Examples of these sector teams include financial services, renewable energy projects, and retail.

KEY ACCOUNT MANAGEMENT

Mazars is increasingly providing clients who want it with a Key Account Manager, often using a coordination tool such as Mazars' 'In-Control' software.
